

Hanes has made efforts to recycle/reclaim waste to lessen our environmental impact in the communities we have serviced since 1989. We have established internal programs to limit the amount of products sent to landfills and gases released into our atmosphere. Hanes makes a conscience effort to purchase products with some amount of reclaimed or recycled material.

To further show commitment to our environment, Hanes has found areas for our woven products to be reclaimed and used in other applications. By finding other environmentally sound ways of disposing of our waste and using products with a percentage of reclaimed/recycled materials, Hanes continues the process it started in 1989 to be “green” and lessen its impact in all the communities where we are located.
